Among the younger bicyclists of Brooklyn none has made more rapid advancement than the Brooklyn Ramblers. This club has been a sturdy organization since the day its constitution was adopted, owing largely to the fact that the charter members all belong to athletic clubs and formed the Ramblers to assist each other in perfecting the art of wheeling. The Club already has among its members several men who are widely and well known sprinters and road riders.

Brooklyn's Alleged Fire Bugs Are Still Missing.

A case of alleged forged ball bonds was brought to light to-day in the District Attorney's office in Brooklyn, through which two prisoners, Joseph and Fannie Silverman, under indictment for arson, in setting fire to their store, 108 Columbia street, Brooklyn, last December, gained their liberty and failed to appear for trial.

When first arraigned the defendants were held in $10,000, which was reduced several weeks ago to $4,000. Their attorney is Jure Werberg, of Brooklyn, and to him the Silvermans introduced two men, who were accepted as sureties for the $4,000 bonds.

They signed the ball papers as Jacob Skolski, 80 Union street, and Louis Minsky, 100 Union street.

Therefore the Silvermans were released, Skolski and Minsky say that their signatures were forged.

They were notified that their bonds of $4,000 had been turned over to the non-suspects of the Silvermans, Skolski and Minsky called on District Attorney Ridgway, and the district-attorney said he would have to proceed in the regular channel to collect the amount of the foreclosed lands in court. Minsky and Skolski were also released and freed from the responsibility.

Meanwhile Fire Marshal Lewis tells of an attempt made to bribe him with $4,000 to prevent the Silvermans to be released on bail.
